NEAR SOLEBURYRousing Reception Is Given

Mark Thatcher Gives Talk On Issues of the National Campaign

(Special to The Courier)

NEW HOPE, Aug. 31—The Republican campaign in Bucks county got away to a perfect start Saturday when more than 400 men and women turned out to attend the Republican picnic sponsored by the Delaware Valley Republican Club, at Ely's Grove, Solebury township, near this borough. In spite of the threatening weather the crowd was almost double that of a year ago.

Never before in the history of community picnics has so much interest been shown in a political campaign. When the hour for the speech-making arrived, the large crowd of men and women grouped around the speakers, anxious to hear the plans and details of the approaching Republican campaign.

More than one old-line Democrat was on hand Saturday, wearing the sunflower of the Kansas State, and a close inspection of the entire crowd revealed a number of New Dealers, who evidently have had enough of the present Democratic administration.

Speakers made in plain words that anybody could understand, that the approaching campaign is not a political campaign but an honest-to-goodness crusade to save America.

A tremendous ovation was given the Republican candidate for Congress in the Bucks-Lehigh district, Theodore R. Gardner, of Emmaus, leaving no doubt in the minds of everyone of the daily increasing popularity of the Republican candidate.

Dr. R. C. Magill, of New Hope, president of the Delaware Valley Republican Club, was the presiding officer of the afternoon. Together with Bucks County Chairman A. Harry Clayton, of Doylestown, he introduced the speakers.

The platform of the Republican party and the platform on which United States Commissioner Gardner is seeking election in November over his Democratic opponent, was outlined by Mr. Gardner. He made it plain that the platform is the same that was enunciated at the Republican convention in Cleveland.

"The Republican campaign will be frank and outspoken but also constructive," declared Mr. Gardner. "Under the administration of Governor Landon, the United States will turn from the wild extravagance, the reckless experimentation and imported ideas of economic control.

"It will turn to the tried and tested precepts, the constitutional limitations and the peculiarly American system under which we have grown to be the richest, the greatest and the most powerful nation in the world.

"My opponent, now in Congress, made the statement the other day in Quakertown that the Republican platform was just placed there in words with no idea of carrying it out. I do not know whether my opponent is acquainted with the people who wrote the Republican platform or not, but I do know that the promises of the Democrats and the platform that they adopted, were never carried out.

"Think of it, my fellow-Americans, a total of $22,400,000,000 has been spent by the present administration, or as much as the governments in the

New Film Has Melodies That Appeal To All Ages

Six song hits, all of them currently popular both on the air waves and in dance halls everywhere, are heard in the rollicking tale of romance and melody in the West, "Rhythm on the Range," currently on the screen of the Grand Theatre, today and tomorrow.

The picture features two radio headliners, Bing Crosby and Bob Burns, Arkansas bawooska artist, and has Frances Farmer in the leading feminine role. Martha Raye, new comedienne screen "find," plays the comedy romantic role opposite Burns.

"Rhythm on the Range" casts Crosby and Burns as cowboys. Crosby wins money to buy a prize bull, during the course of a New York rodeo, and starts for Arizona in a box car with the animal. He has company in the person of Miss Farmer, a society miss fleeing from an unwanted marriage.

"I Can't Escape From You," by Richard Whiting and Leo Robin; "The House That Jack Built For Jill," by Robin and Frederick Hollander; "If You Can't Sing It You'll Have to Swing It" by Sam Coslow; "Empty Saddles," by Billy Hill, and "I'm an Old Cowhand From the Rio Grande," by John Mercer, all are introduced in the picture. "Rhythm on the Range," by Bing and Walter Bullock, was introduced by it, and "Roundup Lullaby," by Gertrude Ross, is heard throughout.

MEDICAL JOURNAL
DECRIES THE NEW DEALThe American Interne Attacks
Efforts To Socialize the Medical FieldVIGOROUSLY OPPOSES IT

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—A leading article today in The American Interne, non-partisan medical journal, will decry the New Deal's "underhanded attempts to 'socialize' the medical field." The article will say:

"Until the advent of the New Deal, politics and Medicine had little in common. Now, however, with the injection of broad social questions into the political field, medical men have cause to wonder what the future holds for them professionally.

"The open advocacy of so-called 'socialized' Medicine by President Roosevelt and his Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins, has virtually delivered the future of the medical profession into the hands of politicians.

"The attitudes of the two major parties toward Medicine and its allied fields of dentistry, nursing and pharmacology demand, therefore, the earnest consideration of physicians, surgeons, and all others engaged in the medical service. The younger members of the profession particularly have a large stake in the forthcoming election in November.

"It is no secret that New Dealers would, if successful in November, drive still deeper, the pegs of complete socialization of medical and health services. Already, they boast of alleged benefits of fees paid by the government for medical service to relief clients; likewise they point out certain so-called aids to better medical practice derived from funds spent in providing laboratory service for physicians and in other ways.

"Against such underhanded attempts to 'socialize' the medical field, we have the attitude of the Republican party so clearly and ably stated by Alfred M. Landon, Republican nominee for President, when he addressed the opening session of the American Medical Association at Kansas City in May of this year. Thunderous applause greeted these words of Mr. Landon:

"Medicine will not willingly be made the servile instrument of politicians or the instrument of domineering bureaucracy. I predict that the typical American physician and organized Medicine as a whole will at no time be ready for any scheme of regimentation, for any system of impersonalized Medicine which is totally alien to the best traditions of the American practitioner and of the profession as a whole.

"The American practitioner will not be a party to destruction of that individual, personal service which has not been the occasion of a special and justifiable pride. Whatever further advances are made in the broadening of medical service—there will be an abundance of them—will be made

PROCLAMATIONTo Owners and Drivers of Vehicles

WHEREAS, it has become necessary for the Pennsylvania State Highway Department to divert traffic from a portion of the Lincoln Highway while certain repairs and improvements to said Lincoln Highway are being made, to Route 13, which is Pond street, a heavily traveled and congested thoroughfare in Bristol Borough,

WHEREAS, this traffic is likely to continue passing through and over Route 13, for a period of several months, and

WHEREAS, due to the fact that such heavy traffic passing through and over one of the principally traveled highways in Bristol Borough, a grave and serious danger exists and as a result thereof, accidents are likely to occur, resulting in the injury or death of persons traveling over such route in Bristol, now

THEREFORE, I, CLIFFORD L. ANDERSON, Burgess of the Borough of Bristol, by virtue of the authority in me vested as such Burgess under the law, in pursuance of the provisions under the Vehicle Code of the State of Pennsylvania, do hereby order that all parking of vehicles be prohibited on both sides of Pond street, between the intersection of Mulberry street and Farragut avenue, until the emergency has ceased to exist and this order has been revoked.

WHAT THE PEOPLE WANT!

(New York American, August 28, 1936)

Governor Landon's best weapon is his clear understanding of the true desires that are in the hearts of the American people.

In his West Middlesex address, Mr. Landon pictured normal conditions in America as they were known and enjoyed so long under the AMERICAN WAY OF LIVING.

The essentials of these normal conditions were jobs that paid good wages, homes that offered happy family life, heads of families proud of the independence the American system gave them and their loved ones.

Of these things, Governor Landon said:

"We Americans lived that way because we wanted to live that way. We still like it better than any other way."

This is in sharp contrast to the exhortations that have become familiar since the advent of the New Deal.

The creed of the New Dealer is that nothing America ever had is worth preserving. He wants the American people to believe all their bridges of desire are burned behind them, and they have no course but to pick their way through a morass of experimentation toward some misty goal they never heard of before.

Governor Landon does not believe this is what the American people really want.

He believes the man who does not have a job now can remember when he did have one, and WOULD LIKE TO HAVE AS GOOD A ONE AGAIN.

He believes the younger generation of Americans now coming to maturity would like to be assured of having the kind of jobs they know IT USED TO BE POSSIBLE FOR YOUNG MEN TO GET.

The New Deal heretics screech about the dangers of "going back."

The man in the street would be HAPPY for a chance to go back to the conditions that prevailed when he enjoyed the opportunity to work at his trade or profession, and to be paid wages for that work THAT ASSURED THE COMFORT OF HIS FAMILY.

A nation that has strayed from the paths of common sense and good government has ample incentive for going back to THE AMERICAN WAY OF LIVING.

Their AttitudesFRED. LIBBY IS SPEAKER

FALLSINGTON, Aug. 31—The Bucks Quarterly Meeting of Friends (Race Street Branch) held its Fall session jointly with Bucks-Burlington Quarterly Meeting (Arch Street Branch) on Saturday at Fallsington with more than 250 members of both branches in attendance.

The meeting for worship convened at two o'clock and this was followed by business sessions of each branch conducted separately. After the adjournment of the business meetings supper was served by the joint meetings and then there was a period when the members mingled socially until the evening speaker was presented.

The speaker was Frederick Libby, Counsel for the International Society for the Prevention of War. Mr. Libby presented some interesting aspects of the problems of striving for peace. The speaker, who maintains offices in Washington, D. C., is a very industrious worker for the maintenance of peace.

Prior to this address, many members joined in a discussion of the peace problem and they were advised to write letters to their Congressmen and representatives. Committees were appointed to visit both Congressman Frey and Theodore R. Gardner, both seeking office in November, to ascertain their exact attitudes on this vital question.

Police To Enforce Parking Ban Today

Police expect to begin enforcing the ban on parking on Pond street, late this afternoon or tomorrow. The entire street is to be posted with signs warning motorists that parking is forbidden.

The thoroughfare has been fairly free of vehicles parked along the route since Burgess Clifford L. Anderson issued his proclamation on Saturday. There has been co-operation by motorists in general and yesterday and today, with the exception of "spots," the highway was free of parked vehicles.

The police will post their signs today or tomorrow and begin the enforcement of the proclamation.

MORRISVILLE, Aug. 31—A 12-year-old youth was rescued from possible death yesterday afternoon when he was dragged out of a small dirt cave at the foot of Bowling avenue. The lad, John Krause, Jr., was caught when a quantity of loose earth gave way partially burying him.

The cave was one of two which young Krause and several playmates had been excavating for some time. Krause was in one of the caves by himself when the sides suddenly collapsed and his companions, realizing the plight of the friend, shouted for help. George Frederick and John Warren at their homes nearby heard the screams of Krause's friends and seized shovels released the trapped victim after 15 minutes of frantic effort.

Meanwhile a call had been made for an inhalator and the Union Fire Company responded. Dr. Theodore Cohen, of Morrisville, was also summoned. Young Krause, however, had been removed to his home and the services of the firemen and physician were not required.

DR. J. T. ILLICK TELLS OF HIS WORK IN CHINADelivers Message at Morning
Service In Hulmeville
Methodist ChurchLOCATED AT NANKING

HULMEVILLE, Aug. 31—Dr. J. Theron Illick, who has been engaged as a professor of zoology at the University of Nanking, China, and who has spent the past 20 years in that Oriental country, spoke at the morning service in Neshaminy M. E. Church, yesterday, telling something of conditions in China, and of Christian mission work in that country.

Dr. Illick, together with Mrs. Illick, and their children, Elizabeth, Paul and Roland, arrived in the United States two weeks ago. They are now visiting Dr. Illick's mother, Mrs. Helen Illick, here.

A large congregation gathered to hear the one who as a young man left this borough to become active in the missionary field. Dr. Illick in opening his message stressed the 10th verse of the 10th Chapter of the Gospel of John: "I came that they may have life, and may have it abundantly."

The various characters, purchased by the Chinese, and hung in conspicuous places in their homes, at the time of the Chinese New Year, were mentioned, these including the characters representing happiness, old age, the five virtues, etc. "The Chinese have a growing desire for happiness, and virtues, and the placing of these characters is an outward expression for a desire for life—a more complete life," explained the speaker, who then revealed the desire of some people in this world for material things—"To them that is life; but on the other hand the Christian puts the Spiritual first. I believe the way of the Christian is the only way we can find that abundant life. And if we are to secure a more abundant life, it must express itself in the social, political and economic life." The four main ways of expressing the more abundant life, continued the missionary, are through purity, honesty, unselfishness, love.

Going into the present conditions in China, the great age of China was brought to mind. "For thousands of years there has been in China a loosely organized government, and only within the last few years has there been a definite gain in consolidation of the provinces. And such is not nearly complete yet." Leaders of China's political life have been successful in getting many provinces under control of the central government, it was explained, with only one province in the South still holding out from the said central government. "Politically China is getting stronger," Dr. Illick informed.

Turning attention to some forms of vice in the country it was brought out that "Introduction of opium into North China today is terrific. There is another power in the East that I need not mention which is to blame for this traffic. And this opium traffic means the demoralization of the Chinese people."

Wires.*"American Neutrality Must Be Respected"

Washington, Aug. 31—A blunt warning that America's neutrality must be respected was laid before both factions in the Spanish Civil strife today, following an airplane bombing attack on the U. S. S. destroyer Kane. American warships patrolled Spanish waters prepared to return "fire for fire" in the event of another attack. The Kane, speeding from Gibraltar to Bilbao on a mission of mercy to evacuate American refugees, was bombed Sunday afternoon, 40 miles off the Spanish coast. The attack was launched by an unidentified "mystery" tri-motored bomber, which dropped six bombs at the Kane, but failed to score a hit.

Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, in protest of the bombing, asked that "both sides issue instructions in the strongest terms, as the American government feels confident they will desire to present another incident of this character."

The "mystery" bomber, wholly unidentified by any insignia, according to Lieutenant Commander J. D. Alvis, commanding the Kane, launched three attacks on the destroyer.

The Kane flew the American flag at her foremast head and another was laid horizontally over the well deck, the American officer said.

The question was laid as to whether one side in the bitter fighting might be attempting to create another battleship Maine "incident" in a bold attempt to force American intervention.

Death Looms For Young Murderer

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 31—Death in the electric chair loomed for a 15 year old boy here today.

The boy is Roland Munroe, who calmly confessed beating to death Mrs. Agnes Roffels, 65-year-old invalid widow with a hammer, Saturday evening, so he could steal cheap jewelry, which he pawned for less than $10.

The youngster, an avid reader of detective fiction, apparently was more perturbed over the solution of his "perfect crime" than the murder with which he is charged.

"I didn't really mean to go so far as to kill her," he remarked, "but I don't think they'll convict me because I am too young. They don't send a 15 year old boy to the electric chair."

The State, however, will likely ask the death penalty, assistant state attorney Richard Dedine said today.

Automobiles Crash At Eddington

An unidentified man was killed, and eleven persons were injured in week-end automobile accidents in this territory. The unidentified man was walking it is said along the Highway in Bensalem Township when he was run down by a motorist.

The accident occurred on the Bristol Pike at Cornwells Heights shortly before midnight. The Highway Patrol investigated, the officer being C. W. Reitz.

H. W. Bishop, 4664 Oakland street, Philadelphia, was the driver of the car striking the man. He was held in $2,000 bail by Justice of Peace, James Gny, to await the action of the coroner. The injured man died in the Frankford Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Bishop and friends were returning from Ocean Grove, N. J., and Mr. Bishop states he did not see the man until he struck him.

A child was injured when an automobile overturned on the Lincoln Highway detour, near Morrisville, Saturday night. The youngster, George McPherson, 150 East 78th street, New York, was treated at St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, for a deep laceration of the right knee.

Two automobiles crashed head-on late Saturday night below Street Road, on the Bristol Pike, Eddington. A car driven by a man, who is reported as having left the scene, crashed into a machine driven by Owen Hughes, 4th and Broadway, West Bristol.

According to those near the scene at the time of the accident Hughes accompanied by his wife and child were driving east on the Bristol Pike when the other car shot across the road and crashed head-on into the Hughes machine.

William Burrs, 19, 201 Brown street, and Adam Gadecki, of 1105 North Galloway street, Philadelphia, were injured. Burrs had his nose broken and suffered lacerations of the face. Gadecki had several teeth knocked out and suffered brush burns of the face. Both were treated at the Harriman Hospital.

Mrs. Hughes had a number of her teeth loosened and was considerably shaken-up. She was treated at the Harriman Hospital.

According to Burrs and Gadecki they had driven to Crofton with a friend who they knew as Joe Dewald. They told officers they did not know his address. It was later reported that the car was a "Drive-It-Yourself" machine.

The Hughes family was returning from Philadelphia when the accident occurred.

It is said the trolley tracks on Main street, Tullytown, were the cause of another accident Saturday morning when a car occupied by three Philadelphians crashed into a truck going in the opposite direction. The automobile which was badly damaged was occupied by two women, and a man.

The women were thrown to the street and suffered slight cuts and bruises. The automobile in which the Philadelphians were traveling was going toward Philadelphia while the truck was traveling toward Trenton.

Floyd Eisenheart, 2427 N. 11th street, Philadelphia, was injured in an accident which occurred yesterday at Torresdale Manor. He received lacerations and a contused wound on the right side of forehead. The accident occurred yesterday afternoon.

The driver of the car was Samuel Spiel, 5703 Edrick street, Philadelphia. Spiel was taken into custody by Constable Ewing of Cornwells.

Four persons were injured early Saturday evening as the result of an automobile collision at Bellevue avenue and the closed super-highway, Langhorne.

FREEDOM OF PULPIT

Ministers throughout the country have shown commendable restraint in refusing to take issue sharply with Rev. Dr. Frederic S. Fleming, rector of the famous Trinity Parish, New York City, when he declared for a moratorium on preaching. Those who have taken notice, seem to make allowance for ministerial figures of speech and to interpret it as meaning that preaching might be better if sermons were shorter.

On a question so obviously debatable no one should speak arbitrarily. The church to which Dr. Fleming belongs lays more emphasis on its ritual than on its pulpit oratory, and perhaps might discontinue sermons without serious menace to church attendance. In many denominations, however, the church service takes most of its significance from the sermon and would practically declare a church holiday with the moratorium on preaching.

Fortunately that freedom which has its basis in the Constitution of the United States and in tradition of greater age in this country, permits religious people to exercise choice in these matters. Those who find satisfaction and help in long sermons will have no difficulty in adhering to groups that have like preferences; those who think Dr. Fleming is right will find that his theory is not peculiar to him.

THE IDLE WORD

The idle word that stings is as old as human speech. Spoken thoughtlessly or spoken in a moment of irritation, it says more than the speaker meant. At least it says more than he would have said if he had taken second thought. Too often in a hasty moment one who really would not for worlds cause lasting hurt does just that because he reaches for the first remark that will register.

These idle words go deep, deep into the heart and memory of the one to whom they are addressed. There is no way of reaching this harm by laws and courts. There is no way of resolving that one will never say the thing that causes needless hurt, except by resolving to build up a habit in one's life of saying only kindly things until quiet reflection has shown the need of something else.

This is not a text for weaklings, a counsel of meekness to the point of being trodden upon. It was not a weak man who prayed, "Set a watch before the door of my lips," nor a fool who wrote, "She openeth her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue is the law of kindness."

With weather diminishing the crops and Yale finding that five men a day are better than three, surpluses may join last year's fads.

Danzig and San Marino have recognized the annexation of Ethiopia by Italy, but perhaps we ought to hold off and see how Maine goes.

If it becomes necessary for the citizen to know anything about his navy, we could put a Japanese spy on the stand and give him the works.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, Mar. 4, 1875. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

A number of the business men of Bristol have connected themselves with an association formed for the purpose of protection against such customers who patronize their shops and who cannot or will not pay, and who find it cheaper to move than pay rent. The names of all delinquent debtors are printed in a paper with the amounts they owe attached to their names. This paper is sent to each member of the association for his information, and it frequently has the effect of bringing a tough customer up to the mark, who finds he cannot obtain credit until old bills are settled. One of our storekeepers informs us that the plan works admirably, and that he has received full pay on some accounts he had considered worthless.

The members of the Baptist Church have decided to build a parsonage on that vacant portion of their church lot which fronts on Cedar street. The parsonage will be a cottage similar to the one recently built for Rev. J. C. Hyde. The building is estimated to cost when completed about $2,500. E. C. Flock is the builder.

March 1st was observed as a day of fasting and prayer by the members of the African Methodist Episcopal Church. The special object is civil and political rights.

WARMINSTER—John B. Carroll has been in Philadelphia since last October attending the Winter term of lectures at the Jefferson Medical College. He returned on Saturday last.

At the public sale of the personal property of Barkley Kirk, deceased, of Warminster, on Thursday last, cows brought from $26 to $70 per head; corn 98 cents per bushel, and wheat $1.23; mixed hay $16.50 per ton; wheat in the ground $16 per acre.

HULMEVILLE—George Harrison, formerly of this place, but lately from the State Normal School at West Chester, is now teaching public school in Oxford Valley.

The work on the new railroad near this place was suspended during the cold weather. Workmen are engaged in digging the foundations for the bridges at Flowers' Mill, and the mason work will be commenced as soon as the weather will permit.

The Hulmeville Manufacturing Company have decided to erect a new stone dam on their property. Workmen are now engaged in quarrying out stone for that purpose. In the meantime all work at the cotton factory has stopped.

YARDELEVILLE—Niles Martin's coal sheds fell with the weight of snow upon them on Tuesday, and came near crushing some men.

The Catholics are anxious for a church here, and Father Lynch has been tendered a lot by Edward Nicholson, Sr., a little way up the pike, but whether it has been accepted as a favorable location we know not.

Mrs. Goodwyn, who delighted our Bristol people with her excellent readings and recitations, is announced to give a dramatic reading in New York City. . . . Mrs. Goodwyn's father is Col. At the meeting of the fire company on Tuesday evening, C. W. Peirce offered to advance the amount of the borough appropriation, $100, and informed the company that C. W. and J. Pierce would donate $50 towards the payment of the note of $750.50 for hose, which matures on the 6th instant. A hearty round of applause followed. Are there not others of our citizens who will fall in line and aid this truly deserving organization?

JUST WHAT DOES HE MEAN?

"GLITTERING GIRL"

by MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER XXIII

At the Prince's proposal, Vernon flushed—thrilled—despite her lack of real feeling for him. To be a real Princess! If only she hadn't fallen in love with Terry, maybe she could have grown to like him well enough—enough to have that fascinating handle to her name!

They went round to Drouet's, and for a few minutes the Prince was closeted alone with the manager. He made his request. He was perfectly business-like about it. "They are ver-ree rich people. Their fortune at the lowest is two million dollars. You will telephone the credit manager of their hotel, and he will verify their financial position. The young lady is the only child, and if she likes this necklace—this beautiful thing—her parents may buy it for her. That is why I make my suggestion—why I bring her here to you."

The manager looked dubious. "But to let it out of our hands—unpaid for?"

"I assure you we shall soon make a sale to them at our top price. Meantime, the young lady will sign full responsibility for the necklace. People will notice it tonight. All the richest people in New York—possible customers themselves—will be present at the Pageant." Here the Prince lowered his voice to add: "I tell you in confidence—it is not yet announced, but her mother longs so to announce it!—the young lady and I are engaged to be married!"

At the manager came out of his private office, and met Vernon. He instructed one of his men to show her the necklace, with which she was delighted. Then he telephoned the Hotel Splendide, and learned that the Tyson family had engaged an expensive suite there for the winter and were occupying it.

"I myself will bring the necklace round in less than one hour from now," he informed Vernon. He would have a chat with the manager of the Splendide, and get him to come up to the suite on some pretext or other, and identify this girl quickly as the young heiress the Prince had painted her to be.

The Prince's credentials in the first instance had been perfectly in order. Before taking the necklace into his keeping, the jeweler and his assistant had seen the Prince's personal papers, and had satisfied themselves that this was indeed an historic and most valuable piece of jewelry.

Rich customers, too, were scarce in these days of depression. Out of $50,000 sale, the firm of Drouet's, deducting the $5,000 already advanced to the Prince, would receive a lavish commission.

Arrived at the Splendide, from the general manager and the credit manager he learned that the Tyson family were certainly good for the price of the necklace, and then some. On the pretext of inquiring when her parents would return to town from Hot Springs, the manager accompanied the jeweler to Suite 37B, in the Tower, and identified Vernon as the millionaire's daughter, without her, of course, realizing the precaution that was being taken.

The jeweler himself securely fastened the valuable gems about Vernon's throat.

puently. She had been unable to afford a gown for this affair. Aunt Sadie might have had the decency to buy one for her, considering all she had done for the family and for Vernon!

Her eye lit on the glittering necklace Vernon wore. She shrieked: "Heavens! That cost a fortune! Real diamonds!"

"Hush!" Prince Karloff gave her a reproachful look. "It is a secret."

"She got them from you. I've heard about that necklace! It was in your family for generations! Oh, Prince—do tell me—are Vernon

Of course he was angry about her wearing the Prince's family necklace. He might even believe she was actually betrothed to him!

She would return the necklace to Drouet's, first thing in the morning—then be bold about the situation, and call Terry up and explain.

Nan's exultant condition became so marked that Terry kindly but firmly insisted on taking her home. They departed together.

The Prince had ordered coffee for Vernon and himself. They waited for that.

Immediately on drinking the coffee Vernon became sleepy, in and you engaged?" she squeaked, skipping up and down with excitement.

"Why did you bring me here?" Gapsed Vernon.

Terry heard this. Vernon wished that the necklace of the Karloffs was at the bottom of the ocean! "It is for the lady to say." The Prince bowed elegantly, striking a romantic attitude.

Nan chortled loudly: "My cousin, the Princess!"

"Be silent, Nan!" Vernon was scarlet.

"All right, all right. Don't get panicky. I just wanted to be the first to congratulate you. When it comes to diamonds, one does expect some announcement to follow. Doesn't one, Terry?"

Following that, Nan insisted that they all go up to a "cute spot" called the Gypsy Pavilion, for supper.

A long black velvet coat covering her golden gown, the diamonds hidden under a scarf, Vernon and the Prince, with Nan and Terry, set off together. Nan claimed Terry as her escort, and clung to him so closely that Vernon had no chance for a word alone with him.

Moreover, Nan never ceased to "kid" her cousin about a reported "romance" that had appeared a day or two previously in a New York paper, about Vernon and the Prince at Hot Springs. . . . she showed no tact whatever.

There was simply no stopping Nan. She had looked upon the wine when it was red. She was in exuberant spirits.

She flirted openly with Terry and—with a pang—Vernon saw he did not seem averse to it.

fact, rather dizzy. She vaguely remembered the Prince paying the waiter, and someone bringing her her wrap, and riding through the streets with the Prince in a taxi-cab, and being helped up some stairs into a strange living-room, and flopping on a divan that had an Oriental rug over it—and then—sleep—blessed sleep!

It was morning when Vernon awoke in the strange living-room. Her head was aching.

She struggled into a sitting posture. Memory of last night came back to her. Her necklace? She put her hand quickly to her throat. Thank heaven! It was still there!

So she had slept here all night. Where was she? Was this the Prince's apartment?

The door opened, and Prince Karloff, suavely smiling, newly shaven and immaculate in Russian lounging pajamas, approached her.

"You are awake? I tried so hard to arouse you last night, but to no avail!"

"Why did you bring me here?" gasped Vernon, jumping off the couch, her cloak held tight about her.

"It was horrible of you! If anyone should know—I'll go immediately!"

On the mantelpiece a clock solemnly pealed nine times.

"But breakfast is ready," protested the Prince. "Surely you would not deny me the pleasure of your company after having been my guest all night?"

How would you like to knit on 420 needles?

YES . . . 420 all at once! That's the way your stockings are knit . . . on a whole row of tiny needles set up straight in a needle-bar like the teeth on a comb. If you're wearing a 45-gauge stocking, there were 45 needles to every 1½ inches of stocking-width. That would make 420 needles, to knit the regulation width of stocking.

But alas! It is easy to cut off a few needles at each end of the needle-bar. That saves thread and money for the manufacturer. But it also makes the stocking skimpy. You don't actually see this difference in the store because after the dye-bath the stocking can be stretched and dried to look full-width. But when you try it on . . . too tight and short! Terrible!

For real stocking satisfaction, you want to buy them by the advertised brand name, or from a store where you regularly trade. Read the hosiery advertisements. Learn the names and the features of the various makes. Especially now that we're all wearing the sheerer grades and hoping they'll wear like service weights. Study the hosiery advertising and know your subject before you shop.

Medical Journal
Decries the New Deal

in accordance with the fundamental conditions of previous achievements.

"A nation that can maintain and even elevate its medical standards and the state of public health in the trying years of a prolonged depression, needs to make no apology for the quality and the reach of its medical facilities.

"That condition itself is a tribute to the American physician in his continued unselfish devotion to a worthy task. May you long abide in your loyalty to the ideal of individual, personal ministrations.

"From the earliest days the general practitioner in America was, first of all, an individualist. The circumstances of his work made him that, but it was a fortunate situation for the people who needed medical care.

It meant that they could have personal ministrations, that there was an intimate relationship between physician and patient and that the sufferer became at once, and remained, the object of very special attention.

"Down to the present day, American Medicine has continued to be primarily individualistic. It is chiefly on that basis that it is to be distinguished from medicine in many foreign countries. I know very well the arguments for an extension of the best medical service to all groups of the American people. It is a worthy cause.

It is enlisting the attention of the best brains of your profession. I have confidence that you will work it out," he concluded.

"With non-professional forces seeking to destroy the opportunity for individual professional advancement as well as the advancement of the entire profession, medical men should throw their vigorous support to the Republican party because of its obvious allegiance to the American doctrine of progress through individual betterment under an ordered and orderly system of self-government.

"If they will study the history of the Republican party and its 1936 platform, they will find that as a whole, the Republican party is the party of stability and balanced progress. They will find that the Republican party is the party of orderly processes and honest administration. Never in its history has it ever attempted to mislead the American people or incite them to class warfare. Never, has it violated its word to the electorate. Never in its history, has it harbored foreign-minded theorists in its party councils or placed such men at the controls of government. The Republican party has been strictly American in its thought and action.

"These general observations are significant at this time, because, in the jumbled state of affairs created by New Deal practices, these attributes spell safety without the sacrifice of either medical or political advancement. They give assurance of freedom from violent changes in the normal American manner of adjusting existing conditions to new and modern trends.

"No one can deny that developments and trends in the social order have combined with almost revolutionary developments in medicine to create new public attitudes towards medical care. Certain social adjustments are sorely needed. But the medical profession knows of these necessities and under Republican political leadership, the profession will undoubtedly take sound steps to adjust them.

"All in all, the New Deal record being what it is, a record of broken promises, indirect and underhanded methods, evasions of constituted authority and the toleration of admitted Socialists and promotion of socialistic doctrines, neither the medical profession nor its practitioners, can expect a continuance of its independent professional self-government and freedom from political manipulations.

"Furthermore, ethical philosophies which are expressed in professional codes and canons of fair practice, are impossible under any system that places a political government at the controls of a professional organization. Yet, it is by professional adherence to such codes that the public derives its chief protection against widespread injustices and injuries."

UNUSUAL SHAPES MARK
NEW HATS FOR AUTUMN

Jaunty Chapeaux Matched by Coats Which Are Styled to Swagger Fullness

Two new hats

Miss Russell models

By SUSAN BARDEN
International Illustrated News Writer
NEW YORK—A variety of even more unusual shapes show the style trend in hats for the fall but there are models for all types so it won't be difficult to find a hat that is both smart and flattering.
The main trick in looking chic in the new hats is knowing exactly the right angle to wear them, so be sure to get this settled when the fall number is purchased.
After getting the hat question solved it is a safe bet that coats this season are very broadshouldered. The hats and coat shown in the above pictures are perfect examples of what the well-dressed gal will wear.

Trick Crowns Shown
Elizabeth Russell has chosen a burgundy felt with a trick manipulation of the crown and a curled quill thrust through the narrow groin band.
The brim is cut wider in front and turns down over the coiffure in back. This hat is a particularly becoming one for those who prefer always to wear a hat with a brim.

Another of Miss Russell's selections boasts the shallowest crown in Hollywood. It is of dark green felt, with a bit of grosgrain ribbon encircling the crown next to the hairline. A triple quill of red, green and yellow made shiny with a coat of shellac adds a gay touch.

New Coats Cut Full
The wide shouldered coat is grand for either afternoon or evening wear. It is a copy of a Vionnet in black Antinea velvet. Its wing-like three-quarter length sleeves and swagger fullness mark it definitely fall 1936.
A diamond and ruby bracelet worn in the new fashion over the eight button Molyneux suede matches the pin worn at the neckline of the dress.
The hat again shows the rolled brim, completed this time, with a veil and a jaunty upstanding feather.

LANDRETH NINE WINS OVER PENSANKEN, 6 TO 1

The game yesterday at Landreth Ball Park was fast and interesting and well played, the Landreth Seeds defeating Pensauken, last year's champions of the Camden County League, 6-1.

Praul, pitching for the Seeds, let down the visitors with six hits and had them shut out till the seventh when Regan doubled to left field, advanced to third on an infield out and scored on a single by Patterson to left field.

The visiting hurler had one bad inning, the seventh, when the "Farmers" got to him for four hits and with two errors scored five times. "Sid" Pursell started with a drive which went through the visiting shortstop, then Olt got mixed up with the sun and misjudged Hills' fly and then dropped it, putting runners on first and second. Hibbs counted both with a two-base hit to right center. After Roe fanned, Broderick hit to left and Praul hit to center for a two-baser, two runs resulting. Barrett's single to center field scored Praul with the fifth run of the inning.

The Seeds' other tally came in the opening inning when Barrett started the scoring. He hit to right field for two sacks, advanced on Dougherty's fly out to left, scoring when Chiasso missed Pursell's grounder.

Roe, Hill, Dougherty and Malmesbury fielded sensationally. Joe Roe's first base play being a real treat. He accepted twenty chances without an error and some of his stops and handling throws were remarkable.

Next Sunday the Landreth Seeds will play Wissinoming, the leaders of the Quaker City League.

ODD FELLOWS LOSE TO BRISTOL A. A., 15 TO 6

Bristol A. A. defeated the Odd Fellows, second half champions, Bristol Twilight League, by the score of 15-6. Pirce and Jones both were driven from the hill by the A. A. team. Sullivan's hard hitting featured. This makes 18 victories for the A. A., who are going strong. Two fast double plays by Heftman, Massilo, Sullivan killed what looked to be an Odd Fellow rally. Zefferies fanned fourteen batters.

The score is as follows:

Odd Fellows	r	h	a	e

John McCongley, Langhorne, R. D. 1, received lacerations of the head and serious injury to his hand.

Howard Simon, 122 Watson avenue, Langhorne, received lacerations of the nose, and burns of the face and forehead.

Martin Lewis, 1922 Girard avenue, Philadelphia, received bruises and cuts about the face.

Irving Rosen, 812 N. 41st street, Philadelphia, received burns on the face and injuries to both knees and chest.

It was said that McCongley was driving on Bellevue avenue when he failed to stop at the Stop sign at the closed super-highway. Langhorne, thus colliding with a car driven by Martin Lewis. Rosen was riding with Lewis, and Simon was riding with McCongley when the accident occurred.

McCongley's car was seriously damaged and as a result of the in-

Dr. J. T. Illick Tells Of His Work In China

It was stated that many of the government officials are either Christian or friendly to the Christian movement. The "New Life Movement" which is gaining in China was mentioned. "This is a fine thing, but the real thing back of it must be the Christian movement," aided the speaker.

Giving attention to the Christian conferences in China the congregation was informed there are nine such. The Central China Conference, which includes that under which Dr. Illick operates, includes three large cities. "Ours has between 15 and 20 ordained men, the board being compelled to reduce the number by one-half. Some have been dropped; some have agreed to carry on at their own expense, preaching without salary. We are undergoing a period of transition, with the burden being placed on the churches. Funds from the churches at home are decreasing. . . . We have three churches in the Central China Conference which are self-supporting. But I do feel there has been a gain because of the transition. We are groping just now, and feeling our way along."

The emphasis being placed on the institutes for young people of China was mentioned. "Such are relatively new in China, but are conducted much as your young people's Christian institutes are here. We are trying to get the young people to become church-minded, and are endeavoring to make the church the center of their village life, just as the temples in times gone by were the center of the village life."

Pastoral institutes, a great aid to the ministers in the outlying areas, were told of. "Such give these ministers contacts, stimulation and guidance."

The University of Nanking, where Dr. Illick is an instructor, was told of. "We do not think of our work as a medical or missionary work. It is like any other institution in this country. We have 1500 students, and we have colleges of arts, science and agriculture. The manner in which visual education is stressed was told of; and the audience was also told that pre-medical education is emphasized there, as is also crop improvements in the agricultural college."

"All religious instruction in the University is voluntary under the new government, as it should be. And we have many students who desire to study the Bible. . . . We have a faculty retreat each semester, and likewise conduct one for the students, where we talk over our religious problems. We feel that if Christianity means anything it should affect all aspects of life."

Over 400 Attend Republican Picnic Near Solebury

last 121 years have spent in this country.

"You and I must pay this bill. Sixty per cent of the taxes are paid by the people with incomes of less than $5000."

"I am not going to stand here and say that we will be able to reduce taxes just as soon as Governor Landon is elected. The debt is here and we must pay it, but I will pledge you, that if elected in November, I will work continuously for the reduction of taxes."

Mr. Gardner declared that he was firmly and absolutely against reciprocal trade agreements as they are set up today, which have resulted in many bad conditions, one of which was the shipping of 43,000,000 bushels of corn into the United States last year at a cost of $20,000,000.

"The 'good neighbor policy' of the New Deal has been to the advantage of the neighbor and not to the United States and because of that condition of affairs, I am strongly opposed to that theory."

"My platform is nothing more than a policy of economy. Economy in government not only saves dollars and cents but it saves human beings as well, for when you waste a dollar on extravagant governmental expenditure, you lower the standard of the working man throughout America."

In an excellent address on national issues, Bucks County Solicitor Mark Thatcher, well known Perkaskie attorney, and a veteran of the World War, said there is today a call for the same spirit which guided the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

"That group of men risked their lives," Thatcher declared, "because to be free meant more than to live. Now again in our time comes a phase when some men seek to impose the same kind of autocracy upon us in Washington. We are not in a political campaign—we are in a crusade to save America."

"I am not a candidate for any office, and I am not speaking to you as a Republican but as a fellow-American. It is not so much as to who is to be elected or what party. The big point is whether we are going to continue the democratic form of government upon which this nation has prospered or whether we are going to substitute an un-American government such as was started three years ago, a government known only in foreign countries."

Mr. Thatcher said that the election this Fall is going to determine whether the system of government as practiced in Europe is going to exist here in the United States or not.

"The only economy in government this Fall is going to determine whether the New Deal adopted for a time was when they took away from the disabled war veterans their money on pension, and thank God that has been restored to them," Thatcher declared.

"That is what you call niggard economy."

"If the government were to confiscate all the incomes over $5000 it would be insufficient to carry on the present government activities; think of that!"

"Industry paid out $20,000,000 more than it took in during the depression out of funds that had been laid away in reserve for times just like this!"

"Out of every dollar you earn or take in, you pay 29 cents in Federal taxes."

Mr. Thatcher said that it would open the eyes of every American citizen if they could all see the tons and tons of printed political propaganda that is mailed and shipped to Bucks county newspaper offices alone by the present administration.

Speaking of the Congress of the United States, Mr. Thatcher declared that "Congress has just criticism coming to it for it has not passed a single thing that has not been advocated or wanted by the head of our present government."

"All these things about which we have been talking today," Mr. Thatcher continued, "we did, we were told in the name of recovery. If they did not work, something else, it was promised, would be tried. Practically all of the promises have turned out to be failures."

"I am saying here today, my fellow-Americans, this nation does not need a breathing spell; it needs a permanent vacation for the present administration."

Republican County Chairman Clayton introduced Assemblymen Wilson Yeakel, of Perkaskie, and Mayor Thomas B. Stockham, of Morrisville, both candidates for re-election. Mr. Clayton also urged Bucks county Republicans to go to Allentown next Saturday afternoon, September 5, when Colonel Frank Knox, Republican Vice-Presidential candidate, will be the leading speaker at a big Republican rally.

Assemblyman Yeakel called attention to those present that it is the duty of every American citizen to go to the polls in November and vote.

"If you really want America to continue America as it always has been, you will go to the polls and vote for Landon and Knox," declared Assemblyman Yeakel.

"The very life of our nation is at stake," Assemblyman Stockham said in the opening remarks of one of the finest campaign talks and discourses on government that has been heard in recent years in Bucks county.

"As to our own state government, I heard one of our opponents say yesterday that the extra session of the Pennsylvania State Legislature cost $500,000, whereas the exact figures were about $320,000. And I might say that although we stayed longer than was expected, it was money well spent for the Republican Senate saved the tax-payers of Pennsylvania $40,000,000, for the Democrats had all the cards stacked to spend $80,000,000."

"Our Republican stand in November is our last stand for democracy. We are in the battle to win. We shall fearlessly expose the fads, follies and fallacies of the Tugwells, the Frankfurters, the Wallaces and the others who are ready, apparently, to scrap the American system of government."

Back in 1933 hundreds of these hogsheads packed full of mild, ripe tobacco were rolled into our warehouses to age.

Everybody knows how ageing improves fine wine. Well, ageing improves tobaccos the same way —adds aroma and flavor.

Now three years later, these same mild ripe tobaccos are being made into Chesterfield Cigarettes.

Mild, ripe tobaccos make a milder better-tasting cigarette. When you smoke a Chesterfield you'll notice they have a different aroma . . . a more pleasing taste . . . they're better!
